YOU HAVE'OR HAVEN'T

Oldest brother Chuck (Charles never quite fit) is in Florida deep sea fishing and dealing with a heart problem.

A few years ago, I was showing someone a copy of a book he helped compile about his old Army hospital unit, which ended up occupying quarters during World War II in Oxford, England, and later field duty after D-Day in Belgium.

Chuck was central supply sergeant for that organization. To give some idea of the size of the outfit, they treated about 14,000 wounded prior to his transfer into Belgium.

Those experiences became a book called "Oxford Angel," not only a compilation of pictures and recall about the unit, but also a collection of anecdotes about celebrities of the day, including Queen Mary, and numerous famous Americans who passed through those corridors.

The text was written by a Col. Dyke, who commanded the unit.

Remarkable thing about Chuck's part in this book is that he finished high school in a small South Missouri town and never went to college.

When told this, the person looking at my copy of "Oxford Angel" asked where the drive came from to do such things.

It had never been asked of us before. I thought a minute and said "I guess that's just the way we are."

The word "spizerinkum" used to be used at our house, meaning, I suppose, that you had to have it to do things. Interestingly enough, Chuck's wife holds a master's degree and held key jobs in State Department and USA before she joined him in retirement.

Chuck is oldest; I am youngest. A lot of years separate us.

But the answer to that question about his part in "Oxford Angel", I think, would be: "Spizerinkum."

It's something you either have or haven't.

Belton Man Charged In Store Breakin

A Belton man is in Milam County jail charged with breaking and entering Keith's Minimax sometime Saturday night.

Charges were filed by Sheriff Carl Black in Justice of the Peace court Sunday morning following his pickup in Belton by the sheriff. The man is James D. Wright, about 25.

Mrs. W. C. Keith, wife of the store's owner, went by the store late Saturday night and noticed a car parked across Houston Street from the store. She made a note of the license number and gave it to the sheriff Sunday morning after the Keiths discovered the breakin.

The suspect apparently came into the store by crawling along an air conditioning duct and dropping to the floor. He apparently left through a back door which was barred from the inside.

Nothing was taken from the store except some keys. A number of cartons of cigarettes were placed in one of the shopping carts, but none were taken.

Outreach Center Adds Special Team To Staff

By Kathryn Kahler

The Milam County Outreach Center has recently added a team of University of Texas graduate students who will be in Cameron every Monday this summer.

"This is a new program," said Meg Gerrard, a psychology graduate student at UT and a member of the team. "There are no set guidelines. First we will evaluate the needs and then find the abilities and tap our resources. If we find the program is useful, we'll expand it."

Micheal Patton, a special education teacher who has just finished his masters at the University, is also a member of the team. He will be working with both behavioral and learning problems.

Linda Davis, another psychology graduate student at UT, is especially oriented toward personality and child development.

Since Miss Gerrard's field is community psychology, she and Miss Davis may work as a team—perhaps in a family therapy type situation where they would work with both the child or adolescent and the parent.

However, they pointed out that most counseling and therapy would begin on an individual basis and would be confidential.

During their Monday visit, they looked into the needs in the Milam area in an attempt to set up a program and counseling appointments.

"This will be a team approach to the different kinds of needs," said Patton. "For example, sometimes with learning problems, we will want to work with the child as well as the rest of the family."

Miss Davis stressed the fact that the Center is trying to open up a service oriented toward children and not just adults.

Additionally, the team will work with mentally retarded children and their families in helping to create better, more understanding relationships.

The Milam Outreach Center is served in Austin by the Central Brazos Valley Unit. Office space and $1800 are provided by the county.

"The Outreach Center was started to care for out patients from the Austin State Hospital as well as to offer treatment to those who have problems and try and keep them from going to the hospital," said Mrs. Nona Miller, director of the Center.

"We began with a caseload of 48, and it has grown to 118 now. The program has been very successful. We've had only one patient return to the hospital," commented Mrs. Miller.

The Center has a psychiatrist, Dr. Z. M. Josephs, who comes once a week as well as Albert Casey, Ph.D., psychologist, and his assistant Robert L. Godsey, who also come once a week.

According to Mrs. Miller, the Center also serves as a referral service for the mentally retarded and the alcoholic. She emphasized that all counseling and records are strictly confidential.

NEW PERSONNEL for the Milam County Outreach Center are, from left, Meg Gerrard, Linda Davis and Michael Patton, graduate students at The University of Texas, who will be in Cameron each Monday to handle a new program for the center.

Council Agrees To Advertise For Line Bids

Cameron city council agreed at a regular meeting Tuesday evening to re-advertise for bids to install water lines from the water plant into the urban renewal area and for installing new water lines in the urban renewal area. Previous bids were all rejected.

Council also agreed to purchase three lots across from city hall, with intentions to remove dilapidated buildings and clear the lots off. The deal was negotiated by E. A. Bigbee, city building official.

In other business, the council: -- Granted a special use permit to Roman Marek for the placing of a mobile home;

-- Agreed to study buying a new garbage truck soon;

-- Elected Mrs. Perry Holder and Mrs. Ed Magre to the library board to replace Mrs. Albert Edmonds and Mrs. G. L. Clark.

-- Heard a report from Stewart Perkins, library board treasurer, on past library expenditures and a proposed new budget, which was tabled by council pending acceptance by the board;

-- Granted lease to Pat's Spraying Service for space for three crop-dusting planes at Cameron Airpark hangar. The spraying service is operating in the general area of Taylor, Rosebud, Lott and Cameron and needs a base to work out of.

Mayor Gene Blake told the representatives of the service that aircraft gasoline is not available at this time, but council will request the agriculture department about fuel for agricultural purposes in the area.

Storm Drain Completed

Completion of the city's $125,000 storm drain project was marked this week by the finishing of the last manhole constructed on 8th Street.

Construction of the project, which starts on Crockett and ends at City Park, was slowed in recent weeks by solid rock beneath the surface where storm drains were being laid. The construction company blasted ditches out of the rock by using dynamite, and the last sections of pipe were laid.

The project will drain a large portion of the city, starting on Crockett past St. Edward Hospital, running along Eighth Street, turning along Milam, and on to city park where drain boxes were constructed in a large ravine which carries rain water under the highway and eventually into Little River.

Graham Construction Co. was contractor on the job.

Hobby Visits Georgia To Study Budget Techniques

By Bill Boykin

Texas state government may see far-reaching new changes in budgeting techniques, hopefully to save money and curb a tax increase.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe expressed enthusiasm for the Georgia "zero base" budget methods inaugurated by Gov. Jimmy Carter two years ago.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and a delegation of Texas budget experts, including Sen. A. M. Aikin of Paris, visited Georgia last week for a briefing by Carter's aides.

When the officials returned, Briscoe said he expects to "be proceeding with implementing (changes) very shortly."

Hobby is chairman of the Legislative Budget Board, which ramrods the Texas budget process. Briscoe said he will instruct his own budget office to take the Georgia system as a model in preparing the executive department's spending recommendations.

Under the "zero base" system, all agencies are instructed to start "from scratch" in drawing up their appropriations requests rather than taking present levels of spending as their beginning point.

Governor Carter asked all Georgia agencies to detail how they would operate under existing revenues, a 15 per cent cut and a slight increase. He also insisted that they list their own priorities of programs as a guide to the legislature in directing economies.

Briscoe has emphasized repeatedly that he proposes to follow that procedure in weighing the value of existing educational programs, as he maps his recommendations for revision of the public school finance system.

LEADERS CHALLENGED-- One of the top leaders in the National Democratic Party was in Austin last week. That's a unique political position for a head of the nation's largest corporation.

C. Peter McColough, chairman of the board of Xerox Corporation, told top business executives in the capital city that social problems in the United States have become problems of business and industry and challenged the Austin leaders to quit treating symptoms of problems instead of causes.

Businesses must become less resistant to change. American institutions must examine all fundamental values in the 1970s and establish a new framework to come to grips with new problems.

EDUCATION STUDY

The State Board of Education agreed to go along with Governor Briscoe's request for a complete restudy of the school system after some griping that the job already had been done.

Some board members claimed they had gone over the system with a fine-toothed comb since the initial Rodriguez case decision in 1971 faulting present finance methods for public education.

Briscoe, meanwhile, said he isn't asking for "just another study." What is needed, said Briscoe, is to determine the fair market value of each school district. A fundamental change, he insisted, is necessary in methods of evaluating wealth of a district. There will, pledged the Governor, be no sacred cows in his coming study.

"It would be unfair to commit the people of Texas to another spending increase measured by billions without taking every step to first correct the crumbling foundation of public school finance," said the Governor.

ENERGY CRISIS

State agencies have been called on by the Governor to cooperate in fuel supply and energy-saving plans, including travel curtailment and use of car pools.

Brig. Gen. James Rose was named to coordinate energy conservation efforts among state agencies.

At the same time, it was announced bids on the state's annual fuel contract will be three cents a gallon higher than at present for gasoline and four cents more for diesel fuel. The State Board of Control was able to contract for about the same amount of gasoline and slightly less diesel fuel, although consumption usually increases about 10 per cent per year.

The agencies, directed the Governor, must not only keep fuel consumption within given allotments but attempt to build up reserves due to uncertainty of future supplies.

COURTS SPEAK

The Court of Criminal Appeals held the state's 1967 law against incitement to riot unconstitutional.

The State Supreme Court affirmed a Potter County commissioners' decision that a dead man's name can legally appear on an election ballot.

The High Court ordered release on bond of a Carrollton lawyer pending a June 20 hearing on a contempt of court order in which a Wichita Falls judge accused the attorney of unprofessional conduct following a divorce action.

AG OPINION

A person under probated sentence for violation of narcotics laws can be granted another probated sentence for a later felony violation of the same act, Atty. Gen. John Hill held.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

School districts should receive their pro rata share of any county permanent school fund distribution based on their resident schoolastics of free school age. The money does not alter entitlement to state funds.

The Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation cannot use appropriated funds to pay back wages to employees unlawfully terminated under discriminatory practices rulings, but legal adjustments can be made.

There is no authorization for a pawn transaction in excess of $2,500.

Commissioners courts may authorize payments of accrued vacation time and other earned compensation but may not authorize payment at death of other benefits not previously earned or accrued.

A person who owns the land at the time an oilwell is abandoned is the legal "landowner" liable for cost of plugging if operators do not fulfill their obligations.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor:

As I understand it, America's reserve supplies of farm products are now down to their lowest in many years, mainly because we've been selling a lot of the stuff abroad, particularly to Russia and China.

I have long wondered, why is it that Russia and China, with as much farm land as we've got, can't produce enough to feed themselves?

I have now found out. According to an article I read in a copy of Newsweek I bought last week because it had a picture of a horse on the cover--I remember saying to myself, you mean they've got horses involved in the Watergate mess now? --to continue, according to it, China's leaders for example for years have been sending city people such as school teachers, office workers, lawyers, newspaper people and such like out to help work the land.

There you are. There's the answer.

If you want to hold crop production down, just turn your farm over to a bunch of city people. Put a banker in charge of maintaining your tractor, a school teacher in charge of kids in charge of hoeing, a city councilman in charge of fertilizing, a newspaper man in charge of harvesting, a lawyer in charge of sales, and

I guarantee you won't add a thing to the nation's farm surplus.

On the other hand of course if you put farmers in charge of running cities, what would you come up with? Probably with cities like New York or Chicago that are facing bankruptcy and clamoring for more Federal aid.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Getting On With It...

Congratulations to Cameron School Board for getting on with some of the things two bond issues proposed.

Priority items like restroom facilities, lockerroom space and removal of old buildings are getting attention after the recent CISD bond proposals.

Health and recreation facilities are basic. Numerous other items can be added to the list of priorities discussed by the board last meeting.

Point is the board, including two new members and one re-elected, are reasserting leadership in an era when the CISD building problems are increasing, not lessening.

It takes a lot of planning to deal with this old building situation. And it takes even more to dovetail additions made now with an inevitable CISD new construction program sometime in the future. There is no escaping the necessity. Every thing else in Cameron is renewing.

Our schools is hardly the place to make an exception. This board is getting on with it.

Summer Management...

One of the side advantages of industry in Cameron is summer employment.

Thirty-four students, either just out of high school or between semesters in college, are working at plants in Cameron Industrial Park and at some downtown businesses.

Without these jobs, they would be looking elsewhere or doing nothing this summer.

The hope is industry will grow enough so that skilled young people will be able to find permanent jobs and residence here to further staunch the outflow of youth, vigor and ideas from the Milam area.

Agriculture is unable to stymie this flow beyond younger operators who are able to sustain the size operation necessary in an agri-business economy. And those are few.

But jobs in thriving, growing industry are a solution. And Cameron industrial management sees this.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

METRIC--SENSE OR NONSENSE

Rep. John R. Rarick (La.) "... Foremost in this new change to capture the "have-not" market of the world is the transition to the metric system of measures "to get the United States in step with the rest of the world, where almost all the other nations are on the metric system already." (From the Washington Star News)

Industry Inches Into the Metric System

(By Robert W. Irvin) Detroit. Some key segments of American industry have started the transition to the metric system of measurements.

IBM, Caterpillar Tractor and International Harvester have already committed themselves to a changeover program from the present inch system of measuring things.

Ford Motor Co. this July will become the first auto maker to build a metric-size engine in the United States.

GM said it is going to convert all its far flung production facilities to the metric system. All new parts will be metric, including those now in the development stage, such as the rotary Wankel engine.

GM said.

Rep. H. R. Gross (Iowa) "... This is one burden American taxpayers and consumers should not be forced to bear." (From the Washington Star News)

Metric Nonsense

(By J. W. Batchelder)

Chester Depot, Vt.—For some time certain apostles of "progress" have been urging us all to "think metric." And it appears that, sooner or later, the Congress is going to impose this inadequate system on weights and measures on the United States.

Now from out of the woodwork comes a swarm of self-made "experts" with fifth grade technological intellects (or divine intuition) concerning weights and measures, who inform us that we don't know what we are doing and claim to be able to lead us to the metric Promised Land, if only we trust and blindly follow them.

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

High school students being familiar with the metric system know that Miss America measures 91-66-91. And give him 25.4 millimeters and he'll take 1.6093 kilometers.

Paint Blistering? Let Vapor Escape

Barns don't blister. Paint on house siding sometimes does because of moisture trapped behind it.

Don't blame the siding. Let the vapor out by inserting little metal vents, between studs and low on the wall.

Or drive small wedges under the lower edge of the siding. This will help inside moisture evaporate out, but won't let the rain in.

Sandwich Smoked Pork Slices Between Beans

Beans are best when baked with pork. This fact was established long ago when colonial wives sunk generous cubes of salt pork in the bean pot, thus insuring a prominent place in America's cuisine for baked beans.

When further enhanced by sandwiching slices of savory smoked pork between layers of limas, baked beans shift from side dish to satisfying entree. This recipe takes time, but the resulting flavor-packed casserole is worth every minute of it, says Reba

Staggs, National Live Stock & Meat Board.

Pork 'n Lima Casserole
2½ to 3-pound smoked pork shoulder roll (butt)
1 pound dry lima beans
Water
1 cup chopped onion
¾ cup brown sugar

(firmly packed)
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons molasses
Wash beans, place in Dutch oven, cover with 4 cups water and simmer 1 hour. Add smoked pork shoulder roll, onion and additional water (if necessary) to just cover the meat. Cover tightly and simmer 1 hour. Turn meat and continue to simmer, covered, 30 minutes to 1 hour or until meat and beans are tender. Remove meat and drain beans. Mix brown sugar, cornstarch, mustard, salt and pepper and stir into beans. Add molasses and stir until mixed. Place ½ bean mixture in a round or oval 2½-quart casserole. Carve smoked shoulder roll into ½-inch slices and arrange half the slices on top of the beans. Add ½ the remaining bean mixture, top with remaining smoked pork slices and cover with remaining beans. Bake in a slow oven (325°F.) 30 minutes. 6 to 8 servings.

FOSSIL FORESTS
Traces of at least nine fossil forests, one above the other, representing 12,000 years of growth, are exposed in a cross-section of Specimen Ridge in Yellowstone Park.

Blackland Research Vital To BIG, Farmer Contends

The Blackland Income Growth (BIG) program can be even more successful if state agricultural research and Extension program efforts are adapted more specifically to the blackland region, a prominent farmer said Thursday.

Ray Sawyer of Hillsboro, large scale cotton and grain sorghum producer, praised BIG for its job of boosting farm income since it started in 1961.

Sawyer was one of the lead-off speakers for a BIG

Task Force Seminar June 14-15 at Texas A&M University. The Blackland Committee of Texas and A&M sponsored the meeting, attended by about 100 persons.

BIG's program covers about 26 counties and extends roughly from south of Austin to the Fort Worth and Dallas areas.

Sawyer listed a variety of "future research extension needs," one of which was more studies on cotton root rot.

"This is still a major problem in the blacklands and is costing farmers millions of dollars a year," he said.

He called for a blackland soybean variety, and a research program on the effects of continued sorghum cropping on blackland.

"Let's not wait until problems arise before research starts," the farmer emphasized.

Also needed, he said, are blackland-specific insect control and fertilizer recommendations.

Research data, Sawyer said, should be presented to farmers in a more straightforward manner and "in a way that farmers can understand."

The speaker ended by declaring that agriculture has become too complex to expect county Extension agents to know answers to all or even most problems. Agents have been forced to spread themselves too thin as they try to stay on top of situations that range from backyard vegetable gardens to huge farming and livestock operations.

Another speaker, Dr. John E. Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said BIG has been a great success in its decade of operation. Farm income in 1961 for the region was about $420 million a year. Now it is an estimated $960 million, an increase of about $15 million per county.

The director said BIG is a good example of democracy in action--action that stems from the people and the government standing ready with technical information and other types of help.

A gravel base and collar assures good drainage, longer life for fence posts.

low the cost of production," he said. "When producers feel the pinch badly enough, it won't be long before the consumers will, too, in the form of empty grocery shelves and meat counters."

The farm leader said the only way that consumers can be assured of a bountiful supply of food at reasonable prices is to have adequate production and that this can only come from price incentives in the marketplace.

Woodson said that food prices are not out of line.

"The American consumer spends only about 16 percent of his take home pay on food," he said. "This is lower than any other nation on earth and lowest of any time in our history."

The Farm Bureau leader said that the "real culprit behind inflation is still wasteful and deficit spending by government."

"Until we cut out spending beyond our means, we will continue to have our means, we will continue to have our pocketbook robbed by inflation," he said.

FB Leader Criticizes Retail Food Price Freeze

The President's 60-day freeze on retail food prices is a "stop-gap measure that carries with it some real dangers for consumers as well as farmers," J. T. Woodson, president of the Texas Farm Bureau, said today.

"There is a real possibility that we may soon see shortages of milk, eggs, and meat if prices are too low for farmers to make a profit," the head of the state's largest farm organization said.

"Although farmers appreciate the President's exemption of prices of raw agricultural products, the freezing of prices at the retail level does affect prices all the way back to the farm," Woodson said.

Commenting on the cost-price squeeze, Woodson said that some producers have absorbed all the increased production costs they can handle.

"Farmers will not produce for very long when their prices are at or below

Hog History

Hog history dates back to about 2,000 B.C. in Asia. The popularity of pork soon spread to Europe and in 1539 hogs were brought to what is now Florida by Hernando DeSoto. As the colonists arrived, hogs became "standard equipment"—a dependable source of meat for the hard-pressed pioneers. Moving with the settlers, hogs went through the Cumberland Gap into Kentucky, Tennessee, Southern Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, then up the Mississippi Valley.

As the country developed the demand for pork in the towns and cities grew, moving pork from the "grown for home consumption" category into a vital position in the agricultural marketing-meat processing-distribution economy.

ville, June 11-13. 4-H'ers from Cameron, Gause, Two Mile, Thorndale, Rockdale and Minerva Clubs attended. Grimes and Burleson counties also sent 4-H'ers to attend.

Even though it rained and rained nearly all three days, I don't believe it dampened the spirits of those attending.

Workshops on archery, nature study, crafts and water safety were held.

The week of June 26 to 28 will be the District Junior Leadership Laboratory in Brenham. Six 4-H Junior leaders from this county will attend.

Room Enriched By Tiny Garden

A living room takes on a delightful new dimension with creation of an adjacent, richly planted garden space, secluded by high fencing on three sides but visible through glass panels from within.

Seen as through a large shadowbox, the tiny, private garden is better than a painting, as it changes with the seasons. A wood framed sliding door gives ready access.

Close-fitted vertical fencing of western wood can be driftwood stained or left to weather, to afford a natural background for the plantings. Careful close-knit landscaping assures a Japanese-style scene that's pleasing year-around.

This garden alcove also works well off family room, bedroom or bath.

HONEY BEES

Honey bees are sold by the pound and there are approximately 5,000 honey bees to the pound.

By Bill McCutchen

Excellent rainfall in most of Milam County last week was very timely on the grain sorghum crop. Grain sorghum was just getting into the boot stage where moisture is very critical.

Recent rains do not necessarily assure us of a second bumper grain crop in as many years, but the prospects do look good at present. More moisture will be needed later, particularly on the later grain sorghum and sorghum midge may well be a serious problem on all but the earliest crops.

In checking some of the earliest blooming grain sorghum last week I was finding relatively high numbers of sorghum midge for this early in the season. Producers should be prepared to spray for sorghum midge and hope it isn't necessary.

COTTON INSECTS

Cotton fleahoppers seemed to be letting up somewhat following recent rains. Second generation boll weevil has started in cotton that was not sprayed before the 1/3 grown square stage. Hopefully most producers that have had a history of boll weevil problems have controlled the overwintered populations and are getting a good square set.

Producers should get out of cotton fields as soon as possible to allow beneficial insects to build up to control the boll worm and bud worm complex.

Flood warning!

In 1971, the high waters of Hurricane Fern brought widespread, costly destruction to the Gulf Coast.

In 1972, the most brutal storm in United States' history lashed flood waters through six eastern states.

In 1973, surging waters from the accumulated runoff of melting snow and spring rains ravaged valuable farmlands in several southern states.

Are you protected?

Today, many Texas counties, cities, towns and villages are eligible for special flood insurance under the auspices of the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the National Flood Insurers Association.

Different programs are available for different areas. Protection is available for homeowners, for tenants, for owners of small businesses and for general property. To find out if you are eligible for this special flood coverage, call any local agent, broker or company licensed to do business in your area.

REMEMBER—FLOOD DAMAGE IS NOT COVERED BY STANDARD PROPERTY INSURANCE.

A Weekly Report Of Agri-Business News

Farmcast

Compiled From Sources Of The Texas Department of Agriculture John C. White, Commissioner

A Close Look . . . Energy Crisis . . . Sheep and Lamb Feeding On Increase . . . Red Meat Production Declines.

Take a close look at all those glowing reports about increasing farm prices and you might be surprised.

The latest average price report for Texas farmers, for example, shows that only three commodities are above parity. Earlier this year, a half dozen commodities were above parity. But even that is negligible when you consider the fact that more than 200 agricultural commodities are produced in Texas.

Those three commodities which are above parity (as you might have guessed) as of May 15 are beef cattle, calves, and sheep. Beef cattle average price was $44.80 compared to parity of $42.30 per hundredweight. Calves averaged $58.70 compared to the parity of $51.20. Sheep averaged $14.40 per hundredweight compared to the parity of $11.90.

Everything else is below parity. Eggs averaged 56.4 cents per dozen while parity is 60.5 cents. Turkeys, even though they are up two cents per pound from last month are still 3.3 cents per pound under parity.

Cotton still shows the biggest disparity. Average price as of May 15 was 27 cents per pound while effective parity is 62.46 cents per pound.

Wheat price average declined two cents per bushel from a month ago to average $2.18; grain sorghum averaged $2.85, which is nine cents above the previous month.

FUEL supplies for agriculture throughout the state appear to be getting tighter. Reports of shortages are no longer confined to most of the wheat areas. Some counties in Central and East Texas are reporting no fuel available.

If you run out of fuel for agricultural purposes, you are requested to let your county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office know, or you can contact the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Plans then will be made to see to it that agriculture producers do not run out of fuel for agricultural purposes.

SHEEP feeding is on the increase in Texas. Marketings during May were 45,000 head, which was 5,000 head above the intended marketings earlier indicated.

Current intentions to market are: June 46,000, July 54,000 and August 11,000. July and August intentions are incomplete, however.

Drylot sheep feeders with a lot capacity of 2,000 head or more had 111,000 sheep and lambs on feed for slaughter as of June 1, the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service notes.

This is 28 per cent above the number on feed a month earlier and eight per cent above the number on feed June 1 of last year. Placements during May totaled 69,000 head with a total of 10 feeders reporting 1,000 or more head on feed June 1.

COMMERCIAL slaughtering plants in Texas produced 155,900,000 pounds of red meat during April. This is 17 per cent below the previous month and 12 per cent below the 176,300,000 pounds produced in April of 1972.

Nationwide, red meat production is down 12 per cent from a year ago.

Reasons for the decrease include the late winter and early spring freezes and narrowing margins of profit.

Red meat production in Texas during the first four months of this year is 707,400,000 pounds.

A&M Training School Draws Centex Firemen

More than 3,500 participants are expected for the Texas Firemen's Training School which will hold its 44th session at Texas A&M University beginning July 22.

Outlook Bright For Cattlemen

A rising world-wide demand for protein is pointing to an encouraging future for beef cattle producers, a well known livestock authority said during a Blackland Income Growth (BIG) Task Force Seminar June 14-15 at Texas A&M University.

The outlook is the opinion of Dr. O. D. Butler, head of the A&M Animal Science Department, who said beef is still the family's favorite meat in the United States. Demand for beef also is on the upswing in nations which previously relied on other kinds of meat.

BIG is a grassroots, program designed to boost the agricultural economy of Texas' blackland belt. It was started in 1961. The region extends roughly from the Gonzales area north through Temple and Waco and into the Dallas-Fort Worth vicinity.

Butler said U. S. cattlemen probably won't be bothered as much by beef imports as they have in the past because other nations are increasing their use of foreign-raised meats. Australia, for example, which formerly sent much of its beef to the U. S., is now selling to Japan.

The speaker said he expects livestock production in Texas and other states to intensify on smaller acreages, a trend that can be traced to higher land costs and urban sprawl.

The school, conducted by the Engineering Extension Service, a division of TAMU, in cooperation with the Texas Education Agency, is being sponsored by the State Firemen's and Fire Marshals' Association.

The school will feature 18 separate courses for firemen, covering all aspects of fire fighting and prevention, from basics and rescue to military fire protection and public relations.

A new feature, a night class, will be included in the school this year, according to school chief Henry D. Smith.

"We will hold regular eight-hour sessions Monday through Thursday," Smith said, "but will add a three-hour night session Thursday night, allowing participants to depart for their homes at noon Friday."

Preparations for the school require most of the year, Smith said. Workshops and teaching methods reviews are conducted on a regular basis to prepare instructors for the school.

More than $600,000 in equipment has been loaned to the school by manufacturers for use as training aids. Many of the instructors will come from industry to explain various types of equipment and their uses.

The most important benefit a community receives by sending its firemen to the school is the increased ability to provide fire protection and save lives. Another benefit is seen in the form of insurance premium reductions.

Exiled Peron Returns After 17 Years Away

BUENOS AIRES Reuter--Argentinian former strongman--President Juan Peron, now 77, will return from almost 17 years while this month, no longer the fiery orator but still the shrewdest of political leaders.

He showed that he still possessed the sharp political judgement that swept him to power 26 years ago when he returned from exile for the first time in November last year to pave the way for the presidential victory of his hand-picked candidate, Hector Campora.

Meeting with political leaders who were once his bitter opponents, he set up a coalition, the Peronist-Liberal Justicialist Liberation Front, which swept Campora to power four months later.

A ban imposed by Argentine military rulers had barred Peron from seeking the presidency--so he announced he had decided to renounce his own candidacy and appoint his own top aide, Campora.

Peron ruled Argentina with an iron hand from 1946 to 1955, drawing the bulk of his support from labor ranks with promises of wide-ranging social and economic reforms which never fully materialized.

But more than a social reformer, his "Descamisados" (shirtless ones) saw in him a leader and protector. As Labor Secretary in a military government in 1943, he became the first powerful politician to concern himself with labor laws and conditions.

When military opponents tried to oust him two years later and put him under arrest, the "Descamisados" forced his release. He thus became the power behind the throne in the military regime and in the following year was elected President for the first time.

During his rule, he nationalized the mostly British-owned railroads and gas works and the U.S. owned telephone networks. He united workers under the General Labor Confederation (G.L.T.) which became a virtual state within a state, gave women the vote and had the constitution amended to allow himself to be re-elected for a second six-year period.

His declared aim was to achieve for Argentinian economic freedom (from foreign dependence), social justice and political sovereignty--a much blandished slogan while he was in power.

But many believe he deeply divided Argentina into two almost irreconcilably antagonistic camps by fostering class hatred, harassing the opposition, muzzling the press and clamping down on the merest hint of defiance of his frequently arbitrary measures.

The Peron Regime is remembered by many as a reign of terror in which torture and persecution reached extremes never seen before or since.

At the same time, he encouraged a personality cult of himself and his second wife, Eva, who died from cancer in July 1952, and purged his government of all who were not obsequious and servile. All announcements of public works were headed by the words "Peron Cumple" (Peron complies). The names Peron and Eva were given to scores of streets, public squares and buildings, railway terminals and even to a city and two provinces.

Then, as the economy deteriorated and corruption became more flagrant, Peron turned on the Roman Catholic Church, imprisoned priests, deported two bishops and, after surviving an attempted coup, allowed hordes to burn and seriously damage 10 churches in downtown Buenos Aires.

His "Rubber Stamp" Congress also passed a divorce law to hit out at the church and an attempt was made to legalize prostitution as part of the campaign.

The Vatican clamped a blanket excommunication on all involved in the attacks on the church. (The excommunication of Peron was lifted in 1963 after he had personally appealed to the Vatican).

Belton Plans July 4 Parade

BELTON

The Independence Day parade theme in Belton this year may not be the setting for as pretty float entries as past years, but the parade theme is highly significant. The 1973 theme is "The Price of Freedom."

In keeping with the national Bicentennial observance Belton's July 4 parade programs from 1972 through 1976 will be on the theme of the American Revolution. The professionally decorated floats, sponsored by Belton businesses, will show various significant battles in America's efforts to achieve world freedom.

The parade will be at 10 a.m. July 4, following the patriotic program at 9 a.m. The patriotic program will include the 50-gun salute by Fort Hood units, the raising of the Stars and Stripes and a concert of patriotic music by the Rose Bowl-bound Marching 100 Band of Belton High School.

The parade will include the decorated floats, contest floats by area civic, service, patriotic and religious organizations, with prizes in five categories.

The Belton Bicentennial Commission is in charge of the patriotic program, working with the Belton Area Chamber of Commerce, which has sponsored the Independence Day celebration annually since 1919.

There are rodeos in the rodeo arena in Confederate Park July 2, 3, 4. Tommy Steiner's Rodeo Ranch is furnishing stock, and many of the rodeo animals scheduled for the Belton arena have performed at national rodeo finals in recent years.

Rodeo tickets are now on sale at the Belton Area Chamber of Commerce office.

Veterans

Training Clarified

Although G. I. Bill education benefits for thousands of veterans of the early Vietnam Era will expire May 31, 1974, the Veterans Administration emphasized today the May 1974 expiration date does not affect G. I. Bill job or farm cooperative training, apprenticeship or flight training benefits for these veterans.

This clarification was made by Jack Coker, Director of the Waco Regional Office. He pointed out that most education benefits for those discharged prior to June 1, 1966, would expire on May 31, 1974, the eighth anniversary of the current G. I. Bill.

The 1966 law allows each veteran a eight years to complete his training. The time is computed from the individual's date of discharge or from the date of the law, whichever is later.

Coker explained that the original bill did not include flight, apprenticeship, on-the-job and farm-cooperative training, so eligibility for these benefits will not expire for past Korean veterans until August 30, 1975, which is eight years after the date they were authorized by law.

HOW SMALL, YET HOW BIG

How small a man seems — walking down a lonely road on a rainy day, with gaunt trees towering over him.

How small man is, and how frail in body. The trees in the picture and even the chimneys on the old house will probably long outlive the man.

Yet how big man is — in the things that are not of the body, but are of the mind and soul. God has not made man mammoth. But He has made him potentially great — if he will but accept the blessings given him, and use the tools of Christian teachings.

Man finds in the Church, the encouragement and the instruction to enable him to make from his God-given divine spark something great and enduring — and of benefit to all human-kind.

West German Businessmen Play Cowboy & Indians

By Alan Cowell

BONN — Prosperous West German businessmen are donning cowboy-and-Indian suits in a leisure-time craze for the American wild west.

Visitors to West Germany have been amazed to see a thin blue line of 19th century United States cavalry threading through the pines of Bavaria.

Sightseers have reported stumbling on wigwams and ranches in the middle of the West German countryside, where weekday salesmen and shopkeepers smoke pipes of peace, or circle each other warily, hands poised above holsters, in "quick-draw" competitions.

These weekend clubs bear names such as "Les Comancheros, Frankfurt" or "Friends of the Prairie, Cologne." Their members, predominantly affluent Germans, go to extremes to build authentic ranches, Indian villages and cavalry forts to live out some childhood dreams.

But asked about their motives, they say they are searching for an alternative life, based, ironically, on Prussian values of manliness, honor and courage.

One of them, a Frankfurt department store manager, said: "It is the pioneer spirit we are seeking. We come to our ranch, and there we find an escape from the commercialism of our ordinary lives."

At the "Cowboy Club" near Munich, the weekend brings an influx of well-dressed men in their thirties, who swap opulent limousines and well-cut suits for a horse, holster and cowboy outfit.

With blank cartridges in their imitation Colt .45 revolvers, the would-be Wyatt Earps stand around a bar where a player piano tinkles out old frontier favorites like "O Susanna."

They have even appointed a sheriff, who stands by grimly as two of Munich's latterday cowhands stage a pistol-toting showdown.

A spokesman for the club said: "Here we find different values from those we know at work or in the office. There is great comradeship. Perhaps it is part of a dream, but things like manliness and honor count out here."

Some of the businessmen bring wives or girlfriends with them. "But there are no orgies, or anything like. We respect and honor women, like they did in the wild west," the spokesman asserted.

In a wooded area near the ancient Franconian city of Bamberg, dawn rises to the sound of a bugle. The Stars and Stripes—with only a 19th century number of stars—is unfurled and rung up as young West Germans wearing the uniform of the old American Fifth Cavalry stand at attention.

The commanding officer barks orders in accented English. The soldiers mount their trusty steeds and disappear into the woods. Their mission is not to storm an Indian village or protect a wagon train. It is, they say, simply to carve out a new existence.

The commanding officer barks orders in accented English. The soldiers mount their trusty steeds and disappear into the woods. Their mission is not to storm an Indian village or protect a wagon train. It is, they say, simply to carve out a new existence.

Commanding officer Klaus Ritter, with the rank of major and the pipe to prove it, said: "The values we have are clean ones. Here we lead a soldier's life, an honorable like and manly life. The United States Cavalry, I suppose, is just a means of building a society of our own within which we can live this life."

"We make our own uniforms from the patterns we find in history books and come to the fort as often as possible. I suppose it is expensive.... There's rent, and the upkeep of the horses and the fort itself," Ritter said.

Soviet Union Joins Geneva Copyright Convention

By John Morrison

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union, one of the world's largest publisher of domestic and foreign titles, became the 64th member of the Geneva Copyright Convention on Sunday.

The Kremlin's decision to come in out of the cold, announced in February, will have far-reaching consequences which may prove disastrous for Soviet authors who don't play by the rules.

Many implications of the Soviet move remain unclear, but are expected to emerge gradually after May 27, when Moscow finally joins the convention after many years of hesitation.

During these years there has been something of a publishing free-for-all between east and west. The Soviet Union was free to translate and publish any western books it wanted, and was under no obligation to pay royalties to the authors.

Most authors were in fact paid, but only the favored received convertible currency, and the majority of authors had to spend their rouble earnings within the Soviet borders.

In the other direction, western publishers were free to print any Soviet manuscript they could find, and in the case of a Nobel prizewinner such as Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the rewards were more than satisfactory.

Solzhenitsyn and other Soviet authors not published here have in the past had hard feelings about the law of the jungle which allowed anyone in the west to publish their works, often in complete and poorly translated.

Solzhenitsyn moved in 1970 to end the free-for-all over his manuscripts by appointing Dr. Fritz Heeb, a Swiss lawyer, to protect his interests in the west and make contracts with publishers on his behalf.

Now the Soviet Union has decided to join the copyright club, apparently for general political reasons in a year of detente with the west.

It appears that the legal loophole which allowed authors to send their works abroad with impunity will exist no longer. Life may get tougher for Solzhenitsyn and others like him.

Previously no recognised government agency existed to channel Soviet authors books to foreign publishers and protect their rights.

So writers like Solzhenitsyn or Roy Medvedev, author of a 500-page history of Stalinism entitled "Let History Judge" were freed to make their own arrangements for publication abroad.

Alternatively, an author of material which appeared abroad could always claim, if he was challenged by the Soviet authorities, that the text had been smuggled there and published without his consent. While Moscow remained outside the copyright convention, such protests carried no weight and the foreign publisher could go ahead.

Now the situation will be different. As the top Kremlin publishing official, Boris Stukalin, told a press conference here in March, there will be compulsory channel for all Soviet authors wanting to send their works abroad.

He declined to give details of what would happen to those who decided to bypass the rules, but the implication was that they would face penalties either under existing laws or under new ones so far unannounced.

If a dissident author whose manuscript has found its way abroad is not prepared to face these risks, he could be asked to state that publication abroad is without his consent.

Blood Donor's Death Leads To Export Halt

By Enrique Sanchez

BOGOTA — Colombian authorities have ordered a halt to a lucrative blood exporting business here following the death of a young blood donor.

The donor, a 22-year-old man, died from anemia after selling three pints of his blood to the same clinic in less than three weeks.

The clinic was one of several hundred throughout the country which are privately run and are not regulated by health ministry standards.

The clinics buy about a pint of blood for the equivalent of $2.50 and then process it into plasma for export to Europe and the United States where the same quantity fetches about $20.

The health ministry is undertaking an urgent inspection of all these clinics and is drafting a stiff law to enforce stricter medical and safety standards.

"The man was out of work and apparently sold his blood to support his wife and family. He should never have died," one health official said.

Donors should wait a minimum of six months between each visit to a clinic, and it should be the responsibility of the clinics to keep a check on this, he said.

"This state of most private blood clinics is deplorable," he said. Preliminary investigations had shown that most of them take blood without checking the donors first.

"The industry has been thriving for years in a state of near lawlessness," the official said.

The Red Cross national blood bank and hospitals, on the other hand, impose the most rigorous standards, he added.

Would-be donors had to undergo tests to insure the red cells in their blood are healthy and that they are in a good physical condition.

The national bank and hospitals also pay for blood-sometimes up to $3.50 for a pint of a rare group—but most of their supplies are used in Colombia.

The blood exporting business largely developed in Colombia because of the prices offered to donors.

Most of the clients at the private clinics are poor students, panhandlers and unemployed people, who could feed themselves for a week on their payment, the health official said.

The exporting is nominally controlled by the foreign commerce institute which sent $180,000 worth of plasma to Holland and the United States alone last year.

But health authorities are also investigating allegations that some clinics are selling plasma abroad without going through the institute, which officials term blood smuggling.

The ban on exports is expected to continue until the new government law has been sufficiently enforced to insure both the safety of the blood donor and the perfect condition of his blood.

Latin America Is Drug Market

By Miguel Paredes

LIMA — Reuter -- Latin America is in danger of becoming a boom market for the sale of illegal drugs, according to experts in the international battle against narcotics.

"International supply rings are looking increasingly toward Latin America as a future market for a wide-scale distribution and sale of opium and marijuana," United Nations expert Reynaldo Cantu said here.

Cantu issued his warning at a conference on drug problems held in this Peruvian capital, attended by 250 experts, mainly from Latin America.

The conference followed the signing of a treaty in Buenos Aires last month by 10 Latin American countries for a joint program to fight drug addiction and trafficking.

While the 10 nations concentrated chiefly on the problems of hard-core addicts and pushers in cities, the Lima conference drew attention to other aspects of the drug problem on the continent.

The market potential in Latin America is growing as more and more international organizations used the continent as an "easy route" into North America, the experts said.

Since, the police war on the so-called "French connection"—the clandestine route from Marseilles to New York—smugglers have taken to shipping drug cargoes to Buenos Aires, they said.

From Buenos Aires on the Atlantic, the cargoes are being moved northward to Puerto Rico in the Caribbean via the Venezuelan capital of Caracas, said Cantu, Argentine director of training for the U. N. sponsored Latin American narcotics and dangerous drugs bureau.

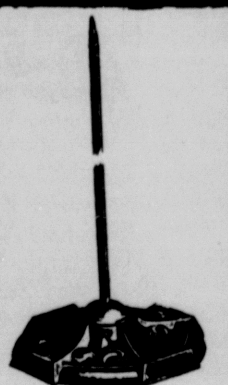

"The smugglers are dropping more and more of their drugs off in these Latin American cities where well-organized traffickers are beginning to operate," he said. In effect, as the security net tightens around the major market in the United States, the smugglers are creating new outlets.

The nations which signed the Buenos Aires pact in April—Venezuela, Brazil, Argentina, Peru, Chile, Bolivia, Colombia, Uruguay, Paraguay and Ecuador—undertook to ban all illegal cultivation of marijuana, coca and heroin poppy plants. But the vast geographical possibilities for clandestine cultivation pose a major problem in Latin America.

While India, Iran and Turkey remain the world's largest producers of drug plants, there is strong evidence that illegal production is increasing in Latin America, Cantu said.

There is evidence, too, that the marijuana plant grown on the continent gave a "better trip" and was preferred in North America markets, he said.

Child Abuse, Neglect Report Required By Law

Day care workers, school teachers, doctors, neighbors—anyone, in fact—who suspects child abuse or neglect and fails to report it may now be charged with a misdemeanor and punished by fine or jail sentence.

The new law, which passed both houses of the Legislature in May and was signed into law by Governor Dolph Briscoe Wednesday (June 13), prescribes punishment ranging from $100 to $500 or a jail term of 10 days to six months, or both.

Rep. Chris Semos of Dallas, House sponsor of the bill, says the new law is simply an extension of a 1971 law making reporting child abuse mandatory. The problem now, Semos says, is making the public aware of the bill and urging lawmen to enforce it.

Most doctors know how to recognize abuse, particularly through bone x-rays. They also know to question multiple bruises and cuts, unexplained burns, hemorrhages and anemia.

Schoolteachers, day care and nursery school personnel, neighbors and relatives are also in positions to protect children by reporting signs of neglect or abuse which they have observed.

The American Humane Association's Children's Division suggests some key signals of abuse which may be present in a child's appearance or behavior:

- Dirty or torn clothing, or clothing inappropriate for the weather
- Unusual fatigue or listlessness
- Lack of proper nourishment
- Physical injuries or complaints
- Unattended medical problems, such as glasses or dental work
- Unusual shyness or aggressiveness
- Frequent tardiness or absence from school, or early arrival and delayed departure from school

The Association also suggests that parental attitudes—such as apathy toward his problems and refusal to allow him to take part in school activities.

If abuse is suspected, it should be reported to the county child welfare unit or to any local or State law enforcement agency.

The report should include the names of the parents and child, their address, the child's age and the nature of the abuse. If not all these facts are known, then any information which can direct an investigator to the scene should be reported.

Names of persons who report abuse are not revealed to suspected abusers, and Texas law grants legal immunity to all reports made in good faith.

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

by Vern Sanford

Timely Fishing Time

Lots of anglers have great confidence in the effect that the sun and the moon have on fishing success. Years ago John Alden Knight conceived the idea of Solunar Tables. These were designed to forecast the times during each day when fish are most likely to become active and feed. Game too.

Many newspapers subscribe to Mr. Knight's enlightening features on this subject and publish them regularly.

Don't know how many hunters follow those tables, but many fishermen do so religiously.

One thing that is not widely known to those who watch for the major and minor biting periods is their duration. Major periods last from two hours to as long as three and a half hours, while minor periods last from 45 minutes to an hour and a half. . . . Facts worth remembering.

Survival Item #1

Most seasoned outdoorsmen say that if they were allowed to take only one survival item with them into the woods, it would be a sharp, top-quality axe.

This in preference to a gun, a bottle of water, matches and numerous other items commonly regarded as prime essentials.

Arguments favoring the axe, or even a small belt-type Boy Scout hatchet, are based on its many potential uses.

In the first place it's a good defensive weapon that also will serve for hunting game.

It can be used to chop down trees for shelter and to trim brush for firewood. Yes, firewood! No matches, did you say? Well, in an emergency like this, the axe can also be used to start a fire. Striking the steel head of the axe against a flint rock produces sparks, and sparks produce fires.

A real sharp axe can be used to clean large game and cut them up for cooking over the campfire.

Second in importance, in my book, would be a real sharp hunting knife.

If I had the choice of a third item to go along with the axe or hunting knife, it would be a top grade whetstone . . . for obvious reasons.

French Sperm Bank Failing

By Paul Majendie

PARIS

Reuter-France's first sperm bank, which has been seeking donors since it opened in January, cannot muster enough volunteers.

French doctors and the Roman Catholic Church condemn the whole idea as adulterous and unnatural.

And Paris Kremlin-Biceter Hospital, a pioneer in the fields of artificial insemination and research into male sterility, also found its attempts at stock-piling appalled many and outraged French wife.

At the center of this hornets nest is Professor Georges David, a research scientist at the hospital who is determined not to break down resistance in the predominantly Catholic country toward the banks which have become widespread in the United States, Scandinavia and Japan.

He says "There is no legal condemnation of artificial insemination but all the churches, particularly the Catholics, feel reservations. For the Catholic Church it is an act against nature.

"Because of this religious prohibition, French doctors are largely opposed to the idea of the bank. They consider that it is an adulterous act." But those are not the only stumbling blocks he has to face.

The professor, a tall grey-haired figure who is wary of journalists and chooses his words with immense precision, said each donor "must give his sperm free, be married, under 40, have at least one normal child and have his wife's consent."

"Our big problem is that the wives often resent the gift of their husbands sperm and they consider it to be an unfaithful act, an adultery," he added.

Professor David complained, "Our shortage of stocks at the moment is very much a case of demand exceeding supply."

The sperm itself is put to work in a variety of ways.

For one thing, the bank sends sperm to researchers investigating the causes of male sterility. They require a large number of normal sperm samples for making comparison tests.

The bank is also used by paralyzed men or people about to undergo an operation which might result in making them sterile. For these donors, Professor David says, "We put aside their sperm for them to use in the future."

Suspended Drivers Listed In Computer

More than 1 million drivers whose licenses were revoked or suspended in 1972 are listed in the federal government's bad drivers computer, according to the Central Texas Alcohol Safety Action Project.

The Central Texas Council of Governments' Alcohol Safety Action Project was advised of the 1972 number by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, which operates the National Driver Register.

State law enforcement agencies "feed" the names into the computer of persons in their states who have lost driver's licenses, and in return may check on drivers suspected of having lost their licenses in other states.

Marvel's recent appointment to his new post was announced following the resignation of Ed Hamblen, who Hamblen resigned because his position as the executive director of Texas World Speedway did not allow him the time that he needed to spend with various other business interests, including the operation of Meyer Speedway located in near-by Houston.

On boats under 16 feet in length, and all canoes and kayaks, the familiar buoyant cushion will continue to be acceptable equipment as long as there is one cushion per person on board the boat. However, officials recommend the use of a wearable personal flotation device even on these smaller boats.

The Consumer Alert

AUSTIN Both the consumer and the door-to-door salesman will have reason to think twice about an at-home sale now that there is a new State law which gives the buyer the right to change his mind. The "Home Solicitation Act" by Dallas Senator Bill Braecklein and Representative Chris Semos of Dallas became law when the governor signed it June 13. Basically, this law provides that if a consumer is solicited at this home for a sale or merchandise or services costing $25 or more, and subsequently decides that the goods weren't what they'd been cracked up to he, he can back out of the deal within a three-day period.

But it also imposes some strict responsibilities on the consumer, as well as the seller.

For instance, the Home Solicitation Act does not cover sales of farm equipment; insurance regulated by the state; realty sales in which the transactions are being negotiated by a licensed real estate broker or attorney; or sales made pursuant to a preexisting retail charge account, or based upon prior negotiations at a business establishment where the goods were displayed.

The original offer must have been made and agreed upon at your doorstep. And that seems fair enough, since the whole idea was to put the consumer on equal footing with the itinerant salesman whose sales pitch may be better than his product.

The salesman is required to give the consumer a "fully completed" receipt of contract - written in English, or Spanish, or in whatever language the sales presentation was made - at the time of the transaction.

Also, he must tell the signer about his cancellation rights, and furnish him with a copy of this printed statement:

"You, the buyer, may cancel this transaction at any time prior to midnight of the third business day after the date of this transaction. See the attached notice of cancellation form for an explanation of this right."

The form recites a detailed description of the duties of both parties.

The buyer has the duty to meet the three-day deadline by letter or telegram, and he must be prepared to take "reasonable care" of the goods or property in his possession until the cancellation procedure has been completed.

If unacceptable home improvements are involved, the merchant has to restore the property to its prior condition, unless the consumer says otherwise.

Violation of the act by a door-to-door seller not only would make him liable for actual damages to the consumer, reasonable attorney's fees and court costs, but he risks having the contract voided.

Music School Inflate Tires Properly Planned At San Gabriel For Summer Driving

A School of Music will be conducted June 25-29 at the San Gabriel Baptist Church. The school will be under the direction of Larry Wade Sparks, music major at Howard Payne College in Brownwood.

The summer musicwork-er program is under the sponsorship of the Church Music Department of the Baptist General Convention of Texas. It is designed to emphasize and improve the music ministry of churches of all sizes. The San Gabriel Church has participated in the program in several other years.

Sparks will arrive on June 23 and be present in the worship services on the 24th. Then the following week-day schedule will be followed: 10:00 a.m. youth and youth leaders; 11:15 special musical groups; 3:30 children and children's worders; 8:00 p.m. youth and adult choirs and instrumentalists.

All sessions are open to any who would attend and all are free of charge. Children's groups include those in the first through the sixth grade. Youth groups are seventh grade and up.

Bob Wimberly, pastor of San Gabriel, state that the school will be of particular value to churches with part-time or volunteer music leadership. For further information please contact M r s. James Terry, 862-3344.

Aycox Graduates From Harvard

Bruce Glenn Aycox of Cameron was among students receiving degrees at the 322nd commencement of Harvard University on June 14. He received a Master of Theological Studies degree.

TALLEST TREES

The tallest trees in the world are the giant Eucalyptus of Australia, some of which attain a height of 470 feet.

By turning on the air conditioning, or getting a little fresh air, motorists can avoid the frustrations during the hot and muggy days ahead. And a little fresh air for the tires will also aid in avoiding a lot of frustrations.

"One of the most persistent problems in tire care and safety is underinflation," says R o s s R. Ormsby, chairman of the Tire Industry Safety Council. "Underinflation causes an excessive build-in of heat in a tire, and heat is its worst enemy."

Ormsby notes this problem is very evident during the summer months when families are taking longer trips, and vehicles are often overloaded. One strong recommendation of the Council is for motorists driving long distances at prolonged high speeds to inflate their tires 4 pounds per square inch above the auto manufacturer's recommended inflation levels found in the owner's manual, but never to exceed the maximum level found on the sidewall.

The Council also offers these summer driving tips:

1. Make sure your tires have not worn to less than 1/16 inch in any two or more adjacent tread depth grooves. Replace immediately if they have worn to this danger point. Tires have built-in "wear bars" which appear as smooth bands across the face of the tread when it has worn to 1/16 inch. Another method for checking tread depth is to take a Lincoln-head penny and insert it into the tread groove. If the top of Lincoln's head is visible, then the tire should be replaced.

2. Examine your tires for any cuts, bulges or knots. Should you find any, remove the tire and have it examined by an expert.

3. Remove any foreign matter which may have become trapped in the tread grooves.

4. Never "bleed" your tires when they are hot after prolonged driving. They will eventually return to their normal pressure.

5. Look out for "summer ice." Sudden showers mix with the oil and grime on the road causing a light film and bringing about "hydroplaning" conditions. Slow down and drive according to conditions.

The Council also notes that underinflation can add a strain on the car's motor as there is more road resistance, cutting down on potential gas mileage.

"A good way to realize greater gas mileage, tire life and increased safety is to slow down," Ormsby points out. "All drivers should realize the cost factor, both for economics and safety, is greatly increased for the car going at 70 miles per hour compared to one traveling at 50 mph."

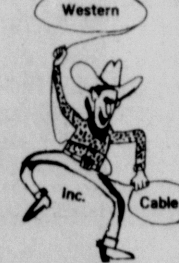

Inflation should always be checked when a tire is "cool," or before starting out on a trip.

UT Campus Housing Available

AUSTIN Applications are still being accepted for on-campus housing for the 1973-74 long session at The University of Texas at Austin. Miss Nevada Blackburn, director of administrative operations in the Division of Housing and Food Service, said rooms are available in both airconditioned and non-air conditioned men's and women's residence halls.

Eleven University-owned residence halls, housing more than 5,500 students, "offer a wide range of living options, including traditional housing for women only or for men only, as well as coeducational units housing men and women in separate private sections of the same floor or on alternate floors," Miss Blackburn said.

Creative Cooking

With today's higher food prices, it takes a creative cook to feed her family nutritious meals at reasonable cost. That is why chicken is a good bet. It is versatile and the lowest costing source of animal protein. According to the National Broiler Council, no other meat is lower in fat than chicken, and the fat is mostly unsaturated.

To help you be creative and take advantage of food specials, here's a recipe for "I Made It Up" Chicken Casserole. Really, these are "rule of thumb" directions. Begin by browning chicken pieces. Then add any kind of cooked pasta or rice. Then add a frozen vegetable—broccoli, green beans or peas—whatever your family prefers. Finally, add a sauce; canned soup—cheese, potato, mushroom, celery, onion, or whatever you choose—stewed tomatoes, tomato sauce, canned sauces—to enhance the combination.

Every combination will be a little different, so you can serve chicken often. Here's the basic recipe and a couple of ideas I like. Let your imagination add the fun.

"I MADE IT UP" CHICKEN CASSEROLE

1 fryer, cut in serving pieces 1 package frozen vegetables
 1 1/4 Tsp. salt 1 package frozen vegetables
 2 Tbsp. butter Sauce
 Pasta or Rice, cooked Topping
 Sprinkle chicken with 1 Tsp. salt and brown in butter. Put pasta or rice in 2 1/2 quart casserole, add vegetables and 1/4 tsp. salt. Top with browned chicken. Pour sauce over mixture. Sprinkle with topping. Bake covered in 375 degree oven 50-60 minutes, until chicken is tender. Serves four.

"I MADE IT UP" CHICKEN CREOLE

3 cups cooked rice, 1 package frozen green peas, 1 can (16 oz.) seasoned stewed tomatoes, 2 Tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese.

"I MADE IT UP" GOLDEN CHICKEN

2 cups cooked elbow macaroni, 1 package broccoli (chopped), 1 can cheddar cheese soup.
